International Foundation Programme (IFP)

The LSBF International Foundation Programme (IFP) is a focused course offering students who have completed secondary education with the opportunity to progress onto a UK University degree programme.

The course is largely centred on the development of applied English skills, and offers you training in specific modules, over 2 semesters.

On successful completion of the International Foundation Programme (IFP), provided you achieve the necessary grades and the required level of English proficiency, you will be granted entry onto your programme of choice.

What will you learn?

In preparation for success in your chosen field, when you study towards an IFP, you are given the option of electing 1 of 3 possible study paths:

- Business and Management
- Finance and Accounting
- Law and Social Sciences

Why study for an IFP?

The IFP is tailored to provide you with the necessary qualifications guaranteeing progression onto a range of highly regarded undergraduate degrees. Each module has been designed to develop strong academic skills, and is focused to reflect your career goals; enabling you to specialise your degree.

Additionally, when you register to study for an IFP at LSBF you can benefit from:

- Work placement opportunities across different industries
- A regularly reviewed, career relevant syllabus
- Faculty with years of industry experience
- Guaranteed progression on to any undergraduate programme at LSBF
- The opportunity to network with students from across the globe
- Strong academic support ensuring you are able to develop language, study, and academic skills for successful completion of your undergraduate degree

Course Structure

This course is delivered over 2 semesters. From semester 1, you'll study a combination of applied English for Academic Purposes, alongside key topics related to business and management. You are then given a choice of 3 specific study paths from the second semester; offering you the chance to specialise. Dependent on your choice of electives, you'll be required to study three key modules; offering you a solid grounding to further your education.
